

The Saunders Castle at Park Place and Tower – Boston

The Castle and Tower, one of Boston's historical buildings and city landmarks was built in the 1890's modeled after a medieval fortress.

This Romanesque Revival-style structure was once part of the Armory built in the 1890s to store arms and house a rifle range, a military gym, and a drill hall. The Armory was planned, constructed and financed by the First Corps of Cadets; a Massachusetts military organization established in 1741. The Armory is the only remaining High Victorian armory in the City of Boston and a designated National Historic Landmark. The Castle has hosted some of Boston's most exclusive events throughout the years. In the early 2000s, Smith & Wollensky steakhouse opened inside the adjacent, four-story head house now known as the Tower until it closed its doors in 2018.
